PREFACE.

THE deciſions of the ſeveral Courts of Juſtice, as reported by able and experienced Profeſſors of the Law, have ever been highly valued by all who take an intereſt in the welfare and happineſs of ſociety; by Lawyers they are particularly venerated and eſteemed: To them, and to poſterity, they deliver down certain and poſitive rules, helping to determine the queſtions continually ariſing from the diſputes of mankind, as to their religion, perſons, and property. They are a Practical Comment on the Letter of the Law, preventing it from being miſunderſtood or miſinterpreted, and rendering it clearly defined and intelligible to all who will take the trouble of conſulting the volumes in which they are contained.

The vaſt number of Caſes, however, and the variety of Reporters by whom they are related, have been found, on ſome occaſions, to add to the difficulties which they were meant to obviate: An evil ariſing, in a great meaſure, from the want of a correct Index, to refer as well to all the different Reports of the ſame Caſe, as to all the Deciſions on the ſame Point of Law; by means of which each Reporter might mutually give and receive the aſſiſtance neceſſary towards affording the compleat information ſought for in them, and which they are deſigned to convey.

A work ſo abſolutely requiſite to all who are in poſſeſſion of Law libraries has indeed been more than once attempted. The moſt perfect production of the kind is that under the title of "Repertorium Juridicum," publiſhed above forty years ſince, profeſſing to be an Index to all the Reports then extant; and which, from its manifeſt utility, has acquired a conſiderable portion of reputation: yet will it certainly be freely confeſſed, by all who have had occaſion to conſult and examine that work, that it abounds with innumerable errors, and ſuch as would of themſelves be a ſufficient reaſon for offering a more correct Edition of it, in the Manner there adopted. When it is alſo conſidered how many Caſes, to the amount of at leaſt five-and-twenty thouſand in number, have ſince that time been publiſhed, (ſeveral of them by Reporters in exalted ſituations, and of the moſt eminent reputation and abilities) and of how much importance in Law modern determinations are ever eſteemed, an attempt towards compleating a plan hitherto very imperfectly executed, will, it is hoped, prove agreeable and convenient to every Law reader, and more particularly acceptable to Barriſters, and other Gentlemen engaged in the immediate ſtudy and practice of the profeſſion.

For this purpoſe, the former Edition of the Repertorium has been carefully and laboriouſly examined; an incredible number of miſtakes have been rectified, not only in the names of the Caſes and their References to the ſeveral authorities, but alſo in what is of great conſequence, the Titles or Points of Law determined in each Caſe, which, in many inſtances, ſeemed to have been too much neglected. The time and trouble neceſſarily beſtowed herein cannot be well conceived, by any but thoſe who have experienced the difficulties ariſing from an undertaking, in which induſtry and exactneſs, at leaſt, are abſolutely neceſſary, and which cannot be properly executed without ſome portion of legal knowledge. All the Reporters publiſhed ſince the Repertorium have been attentively peruſed, and the Caſes contained in them inſerted, arranged, and compared: among theſe, particular attention has been beſtowed on the ſeven volumes of Determinations in Parliament, the dernier reſort of Juſtice in this kingdom, and which were, for a long time, the grand deſideratum in the Hiſtory of legal Proceedings. Mr. VINER's immenſe Abridgement of Law and Equity, containing an infinite number of Caſes collected from our Reporters, together with many original ones alſo, has been noticed: all the original Caſes therein, and thoſe only, have been here inſerted, it being conceived unneceſſary to index ſuch as are contained at large in the ſeveral books from which he has extracted and abridged them, and in which they may be found by means of the preſent work.

Since the regulation by Acts of Parliament, with reſpect to the determination of conteſted elections, Mr. DOUGLAS's Reports of Election Caſes before Committees of the Houſe of Commons, and ſome very few works of a ſimilar nature, have made their appearance; but, as they relate merely to one kind of information, are entirely confined to particular caſes on that ſubject, and can only be conſidered or quoted as authorities to the juriſdictions from which they originate, and not elſewhere, it was not thought expedient to include them in the preſent work, as being totally diſtinct in their ſubject and application from all other legal deciſions whatever.

Some alterations, it is hoped improvements, on the original plan, have been here adopted: the mode of citing the ſeveral books has been made agreeable to general uſe, particularly the twelve volumes of Modern Reports. Wherever the ſame caſe is reported by different authors, under different names, all the authorities have been quoted together, under that which appeared to be the proper name, and references made from the other names to that, diſtinguiſhing them as the ſame caſe by the letters S. C.—Where one title has been thought incapable of expreſſing, with ſufficient preciſion, the point determined in a Caſe, two, and in ſome inſtances more, have been uſed, particularly in ſuch of them as have been reported by different writers in different ſtages of the cauſe.—Where the ſecond title is only meant as a ſubdiviſion or explanation of the former, it is included in a parentheſis.—Viner is cited by the page and caſe, in the ſame manner as the two volumes of the Abridgement of Caſes in Equity, as the clearer and more ready way of referring. It is deſired to be particularly remarked, that BROWN's Caſes in Parliament are indexed, both by the name of the plaintiff and the defendant, and that for the following reaſon:—That many of thoſe caſes coming before the Houſe of Lords on Writs of Error, by the parties who were defendants in the Courts below, they would not be known as the ſame caſes, which, being reported in the former ſtages, are indexed under the name of the plaintiff only. Names of the ſame ſound, though not ſpelt exactly alike, are all included under one head, with proper references to enable them to be found, however ſpelt. An example of this is afforded by the name of Allen, which is written Alan, Allan, Allane, Allein, Alleyn, and Allen.—All caſes of companies, public bodies, noblemen, biſhops, cities, &c. are indexed according to the places or profeſſions from which they are named, as Lord Abergaveney's caſe under Abergaveney; African Company under Af. &c. ſome of which were, in the former edition, included under the title "London."—All criminal and other caſes, where the King's name is uſed as plaintiff, are indexed under the defendant's name, as his caſe; as for example, "The King v. Auſtin" will be found by looking for "Auſtin's Caſe."—Where ſeveral caſes of different kinds happen to come under the ſame name, (as for example, Arundell's Caſe, where no leſs than twenty-four different titles occur) all the titles are now, for the firſt time, arranged alphabetically, for the more readily finding them. A Liſt of the ſeveral Reporters, with the dates of their publications, the periods they reported in, and the mode of citing them, is prefixed to the work.

The Second Part, which is intended as an Index to the firſt, will contain the ſeveral Titles of Law alphabetically arranged, and under each will be collected the names of all the caſes determined on that point.

Having ſaid thus much with reſpect to the plan or deſign of the work, and the mode of its execution, it remains to add, that ſhould it be fortunate enough to approach, in any degree, to the perfection deſired, the following, among many others, are the benefits which may reſult from it.—Where the name of a caſe only is known, the ſeveral books in which it is reported may be immediately learnt, by referring to the Alphabetical Index of Names: Where a caſe is found in one book, the reader may, by the ſame means, be informed whether it is contained in any other authors: It will be experienced to be very convenient alſo in correcting the falſe citations and references, ſo frequent and inevitable in all law books, and in rendering the old editions of the Reporters as uſeful in that particular as the more modern ones.

The

The Second Part will be found of great ſervice to all who wiſh to read the Reports ſyſtematically, by confining their ſtudies to the caſes determined on any ſingle point deſired, abſtracted from the maſs of heterogeneous information with which they are involved in the multiplicity of volumes containing them. This advantage, it is preſumed, will not be entirely confined to the Barriſter, or the Student, but will be extended to all whoſe duty or inclination may lead them into legal or conſtitutional enquiries, but to whom a perfect knowledge of the whole ſyſtem of the law is not abſolutely requiſite. Although many books have been publiſhed for the purpoſe of methodizing and collecting particular parts of the law, yet few of theſe contain all the caſes requiſite to be read and known for fully underſtanding each ſubject; but which may be here immediately referred to. Much information and legal knowledge on every ſubject is ſcattered through the ſeveral volumes of Reports, intermixed with applicable deciſions, very many not to be found elſewhere, and ſome which, being unſkilfully extracted, abridged, and mutilated, in other productions, inſtead of informing, perplex and miſlead the reader.

To conclude:—Notwithſtanding the great time and labour beſtowed on the following ſheets, they can hardly be expected to be entirely free from errors; but when the extent of the undertaking is conſidered, and it is recollected that names and figures are more liable to typographical misfortunes than any other ſpecies of compoſition, it is hoped that the preſent endeavour will meet with that approbation and encouragement which has been ever experienced by all ſuch works as have in view the advancement of any ſcience, and the eaſe and benefit of its profeſſors.

END OF THE FIRST PART.

Advertiſement (to the Firſt Part.)

THE Public are now preſented with the whole of the Firſt Part of the REPERTORIUM JURIDICUM, on which much time and aſſiduity have been beſtowed, in order to render it as perfect as the Nature of ſuch a Work will admit. Should ſome Errors be found in the Execution of ſo long and arduous an Undertaking, it is hoped they will meet with indulgence from the Candour and Generoſity of that Profeſſion, for whoſe uſe the Work is intended. The particular Improvements on, and Additions to, all former Attempts of this Nature, aimed at in the preſent Publication are fully explained in the Preface.

The Second Part, for the Particulars relative to which the Reader is referred to the Advertiſement annexed, is now in ſuch Forwardneſs that the Profeſſion may be aſſured of its Publication in a ſhort Time. This, if performed with a due Degree of Accuracy, will it is hoped prove of great Service to Lawyers in general and Students in particular; as a Common-Place-Book of adjudged Caſes, and will with the Part now publiſhed form a Complete Index to Law Libraries.

TO THE SECOND PART.

THE SECOND PART of the REPERTORIUM will contain the ſeveral Heads or Titles of Law, and their Reſpective Subdiviſions, with the Names of all the Caſes determined under each Head, in the Manner of the Specimen here given. The whole, as well the Titles and Subdiviſions, as the Names of the Caſes, arranged in ſtrict Alphabetical Order as the readieſt and moſt eaſy Method of Reference. Theſe altogether will form a Sketch or Outline of a complete Digeſt of all the adjudged Caſes to be found in the ſeveral Volumes of Reports, and bring at once to the View all the Caſes determine on each Point detached from the immenſe Maſs of other learning, with which, in the preſent State of the Reports, they are now neceſſarily involved.

The Subdiviſions, which conſiſt of ſuch Titles as in the former Part were contained in Parentheſes, are here arranged Alphabetically under their reſpective general Heads, or Titles, and Numbered progreſſively. To each is added a ſhort explanation of the Point determined and referred to by ſuch Subdiviſion. The Names of the Caſes decided, follow in Alphabetical Order, and oppoſite to each Caſe are placed one or more Numbers referring to the Subdiviſions, and ſhewing by this means the preciſe Point determined by ſuch Caſes. For Example; If any one is deſirous to read all the Caſes of Abatement by the Death of a Party, he will refer to Title Abatement No. 9. and by running his eye down the liſt of figures oppoſite to the Names of the Caſes, he will ſee ſeveral Caſes with this Number, all of which are Caſes of Abatement by Death of the Party, and many of them further explained by a ſecond Figure: as for inſtance Beacon v. Sewell, which is a Caſe of an Abatement of a Writ of Error by Death of the Party, and refers to thoſe Subdiviſions by the Figures 35 and 9. Having thus obtained the Name of the Caſe, he may by conſulting the firſt Part learn where it is reported.
